Dear governing body brothers,

Thank you for all you do to organize the preaching work around the world. I appreciate all of your interventions and the teaching that you share with us through jw.org on a regular basis.

I have been attentive to the last two governing body update #5 and #6 you released. You speak in favor of vaccination. You say that every Christian should make his decision based on his understanding of Bible principles and his conscience, but it is understood by the numbers you quote that you are urging us to get vaccinated.

Usually we would read in every article about a medical field this statement: "This magazine does not recommend any one type of medicine or therapy over another and does not offer medical advice. Its aim is simply to present facts and to leave it to the reader to make judgments and decisions."

You also encourage all congregation elders to be very careful to remain neutral in their teaching and encouragement about care.

Accepting a potentially fatal product while in good health is difficult to reconcile with the respect of life.

Hope you find this review helpful.

Receive all my brotherly affection.

Ghislain Messe
